

DATA SUBJECT RIGHTS

Individuals whose personal data is collected, stored, processed, or shared are called Data Subjects. Under the ADGM Data Protection Regulations 2021, these individuals are provided certain rights which they may exercise against Controllers or Processors. Some of these rights are described below.

Right of access

Request access and receive a copy of their personal data

Right to erasure

Request removal or destruction of their personal data (subject to certain conditions)

Right to rectification

Request the rectification of inaccurate personal data

Right to be informed

Be notified when their personal data is acquired, whether directly or indirectly

Right to data portability

Request and obtain a copy of their personal data in an electronic or structured format

Right to object

Be able to object to the processing of their personal data

Right to restriction

Request to restrict and limit the way that their personal data is used

Automated decision-making

Not be subjected to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling